From this day forward we will furnish the HERALD at the rate of $2 50. and $3 00, if not paid for per annum. This is still price of many country papers, but we furnish from fifty to two hundred per cent. more reading matter, weekly, than any other county paper in the State, and hence it costs more to publish it. City papers can afford to put their subscription at $2.00, because they are made up of deer. dead matter taken from their daily editions, and their circulations are larger. As the circulation increases the publisher can afford to reduce the price of subscriptions, and our circulation has now attained that point that justifies us in making the reduction. We want the HEBALD within the reach of every reader in the county. Will our friends be kind enough to tell everybody who does not take the paper of the reduction? and ask them to take it. The following article, which appeared in a recent number of the Tecnessee Agriculturist is from the pen of our fellow-citizen, R. P. Ledbetter, a well known breeder of Berksbire swine. He heart went pit-a-pat, when he received the charming missive, and be quivered with delight, when he read the modest words that requested the pleasure of his company to the "Leap Year Ball." MARSHALL A Turnpike to Marshall County. Some of our people are taiking of a turnpike road from Columbia to Mar-shall County by the way of Sowell & Hardison's Lower Mill Bridge, Rock Springs, and the Leitwich Bridge. This is probably the most direct route to Marshall County and has this advantage over built, as two new ones have been re-cently erected at the only points where the road crosses Duck River. Sey-the road is a cedar glade, "Fortnightly Review." on Cherch and other routes: no bridges would have to be the road crosses Duck River. Seyeral miles of the road is a cedar glade, and the cost of building the road would thereby be reduced. Columbia is greatly in need of gord a turnpike to Marshall County, and will no doubt contribute handsomely to have it built. The poople along the route will also take considerable stock, as they can pay it in work, provisions, &c. The stock will be a valuable investment, as the cost of the number is Tennyson's new idyll, The Last Tournament, which is given entire; but there are several the road will not be great, and the travel over it will be immense. The tollgate those already mentioned. An ong these fees will pay a handsome interest on are the concluding part of A Frenchthe investment. But beyond every other consideration to Columbia, will to the very large and wholesale trade it will bring from the eastern portion of Maury County, all of Marshall County, and a portion of Lincoln and Giles; and the inestimable value as a throughfare it will be to the people along the route, who, now, if they come to town at all, ride on horseback. It will be a great blessing to the ladies, as they can then ride in handsome and comfortable vehicles. There is another route, parallel to the one we have mentioned, which may be preferred by some, viz: the old Shelbyville Pike. Three or four miles of good turnpike are already built on Moss." the prize story, is inimitable of good turnpike are already built on this route, but the route is larger than the cae we jirst mentioned. Now, every body we have talked to on the subject, is in favor of building a road to Marshall County, but we have had talk enough; what we now need is action. It is hard to say which stand in the greatest need of this road, the people along it or the citizens of Columbia, and we do not know whose duty it is to make the first move. Supplied to the citizens of Columbia, and we do not know whose duty it is to make the first move. Supplied the care of the citizens of Columbia, and we do not know whose duty it is to make the first move. duty it is to make the first move. When asked what he had to say why upon him, he replied:
"That he had but the one wife, and loved her; there had never been any serious jars between them, and he would have taken his own life sooner than hers. Being conscious of his innocence when first arrested, he felt no fear of when first arrested, he felt no fear of conviction, and being anxious to get out of jail and go back to his little ones, he went to trial without preparation. If he had it to go over again he would be better prepared, and thought he could prove his innocence. He had never been a vicious negro, but had been raised preeminently superior, especially in size. This article advocates a hog the result of a cross between the Berkshire boar and large sows of the Poland China. In the first place I think many breeders are very much mistaken in the size to which the Berkshire hog attains when well cared for. In fact, I confidently assert that in Middle Tennessee there po tant lesson, which is, that the Berk-shire has a smoother outline and less offal than other breeds. I need not say that the writer of said article accords to the Berkshire extreme size and development in the valuable parts; such as han and sides. But to return to the question of size, I am frank to acknowldge that sows of large breeds, such as Grazier, Woburn and Poland China (if indeed the Poland China be a breed) bred to a Berkshire boar, will bring pigs that will grow more rapidly, that is the bone, than the pure Berkshire. But they, at the same time, consume a correspendingly larger amount of food, and are of later maturity. Admitting nowever, that these cross-bred animals beir superiority for breeding purposes; their superiority for breeding purposes; not by any means. For, suppose you couple a Grazier sow with a Berkshire couple a Grazier sow with a Berkshire boar, and the offspring should prove all that any one might desire, then you have no assurance that these hybrids would reproduce themselves, for the fact, that the type established in the two breeds is broken and deranged so that you might, in the next generation, get some old absolute breeds that were lug-ged in to make up the Berkshire or Grazier hog; this brings an out-crop in obedience to the law of reversion. No one can tell exactly what would be the results, as the untural tendencies of stock without a continual effort on the part of the breeder, is to degenerate. So, ac cording to this mode of reasoning, cros bred animals are of no real use to breed ers proper. But if one should couple two pure bred animals of different breeds, and tde result should be, if possible, models of perfection instead
